Educational Incursion Information and Consent Tick, Tick, Boom! – Year 9 & 10

Dear Parent

National Science Week is celebrated every year in August as a time when we acknowledge the tremendous contribution Science has made to our lives.

This year National Science Week will be celebrated across Australia from 10-18 August 2019. The festival is proudly supported by the Australian Government, as well as partners CSIRO, Australian Science Teachers Association and the ABC.

At Ambarvale High School we will be celebrating the importance of Science through a number of presentations by scientific organisations. It is hoped that students will experience aspects of Science that cannot be achieved in an everyday classroom. They will also be introduced to a number of career options available in the area of Science.

There will be a presentation called 'Tick, Tick, Boom!' presented by Fizzics Education on Tuesday, 13 August 2019. The production was originally designed to be run at the Powerhouse Museum. This large stage performance gets noisy as we explore the science behind explosions and explain why chemical safety is so important. This is not just a series of tricks though; the experienced presenter will cover a multitude of concepts covered in the Year 9 and 10 Chemical World Syllabus.

This excursion has been planned to supplement learning in the classroom and it is considered to be of great importance that your child attends.
